The reunion service conducted by the First Baptist church has demonstrated a great deal of enthusiasm among the people of the county and neighboring churches. Each service was well planned and carried out in a very satisfactory manner.

The pastor, Rev. J. J Washington in his introductory sermon gave the theme and the purpose of the service, i. e. to renew and recreate our fellowship to the church and our Master, Jesus Christ. The theme was beautifully followed through the entire service by each minister.

The service closed Wednesday night with Rev. H. H Cabbel, pastor of the Mount Airy Baptist church. The treasury of the First Baptist church was swelled by the sum of $40.00.

Appomattox Loses to Farmville

The Appomattox 'gangsters' played their first football game of the season last Friday evening against the Farmville eleven. The game proved a great deal of interest among the spectators all the way through. Farmville made two touchdowns in the first quarter and one in the second quarter. After the first half, Appomattox came back, on the field with the spirit of fight. Farmville did not gain any yards during the third quarter. The last last quarter was hard fought. Appomattox gained the ball in Farmville territory and carried it across the field in beautiful manner, Jasper West, former captain, made the touchdown. The game closed with the score 6 to 18. The game will be returned soon.

New Olds Is Announded

Oldsmobile today announced two 1936 models, the Oldsmobile Six and the Oldmobile Straight Eight.

"Truly quality cars at remarkably low prices" is the way they were described by C. L. McCuen, Oldsmobile president and general manager, in making the announcement.

Every proven mechanical feature which adds to comfort, safety, economy or performance is engineered into the 1936 Oldsmobiles, he said. Style leadership is maintained and augmented by a smart, new design and luxurious interior appointments.

"Oldsmobile by 1936 is characterized by every feature which adds to the quality of an automobile," says Mr. McCuen. "The exterior beauty speaks for itself, keeping Oldsmobile far in the forefront in style streamlining."

Principal among those features which are found on the new Oldsmobile are:

Super hydraulic brakes, self equalizing and self energising, which stop a car swiftly and surely and smoothly.

Knee action wheels which smooth bumps from the road, permitting the same comfortable ride for passengers in the rear seat as is given those in the front seat.

Solid steel "turret top" body by Fisher, providing protecting walls of steel above, below and on every side.

Safety glass standard equipment throughout in all models.

Center control steering, giving an ease of handling impossible under any other steering system.

Ride stabilizer, which "straightens out the curves" by eliminating car sway whil erounding turns at high speed.

Hardened aluminum alloy pistons, electrically treated to make them far harder and more durable than those fashioned from ordinary aluminum. These pistons reduce oil consumption minimize carbon deposits, lengthen bearing life, and greatly lessen the possibility of scoring cylinder walls.

Smooth engine performance, materially improved by the use of light weight pistons in conjunction with an especially heavy counterweighed crankshaft, and tri cushion engine mountings on rubber banded to steel.

Increased gasoline economy through improved method of spark control.

An anti percolating device which prevents gasoline in the carburetor float bowl from being forced through the manifold after a long run in hot weather.

Weight distribution so that all passengers ride comfortably between the axles.

All silent synero mesh transmission, with quiet, easy shifting in all gears.

Striking new design, sweeping in one graceful curve from bumper to bumper, marks the new 1936 Oldsmobile.

Oldsmobile in 1936 presents an entirely new treatment of the front end without sacrificing any of Oldsmobile's identifying characteristics.

IN MEMORY

So early in the morning of September 9, 1935, the hand of Mystery and death entered our home and took from us our dear father, Frank Blair Wolford, aged 55 years. He leaves to mourn their loss, his wife, one son, one daughter, and one little granddaughter. two children preceeding him into the grave, from beyond which no traveler has ever returned.

He joined the Lutheran church about twenty years ago and when in his right mind lived a Christian life. He remarked on the day before the end that "People judged the outside of him, but that God knew his heart." He was good and kind-hearted, always ready to forgive and help those by whom he had been offended.

With aching and bleeding heart, we looked upon the cold form that once held his pure spirit, yet we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who is too wise to err, and too good to be unkind.

Not in anger, but in mercy and wisdom, He called us to part under the rod. And though we groan beneath the lash, may each stroke bring us nearer the Cross, and help us to recognize the still small voice that whispers: "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shall know hereafter."

It is hard, but God's ways are always best.

Because they withstand every test.

Oh may we trust in the great love of God that passeth all understanding, "For we know in part, but when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away.

Let us say with all our hearts, God lives and all is well.

—His daughter.

IN MEMORY OF MISS DEANE JOHNS

Whereas death has taken from among us one of the initial members and vice president of the Appomattox Garden Club, this club wishes to bear testimony to the love and esteem in which she was held by the members and community at large. Although a woman of advanced age, she never lived in the past but was actively interested not only in the work of the club, but in all civic interests as well.

Resolved: that we ever cherish the memory of the one we knew and loved while living and will miss her presence and counsel now that she is gone.

Further be it resolved: that as her aesthetic nature manifested it self in the creation of one of the beauty spots of Appomattox, namely the flower garden facing Hotel Appomattox, where the bloom of added color and charm to that part of town, and a delight to the passers by, that we do all in our power to have the garden maintained in memory of her.

Be it resolved that a copy of these resolutions be entered in the minutes of the club and a copy sent to the family.

GIVE'EM A HAND TUESDAY

The Times Virginian has on many occasions in the past taken the opportunity in these columns to laud the individual and collective efficiency and public service of the county officials of Appomattox county. In these columns we have repeatedly stated that no county in the state had better all round officers than Appomattox.

Taken one by one, they are men of ability, education, trustworthiness and loyalty to the best interests of Appomattox. As to each and all of them it can be said that statement is the correct one. The sound management of the affairs of the county. Our county has no bonded indebtedness; operates on a balanced budget; constantly makes forward looking physical advances, and maintains its offices in a businesslike manner. We are not among the leading counties of the state in size, but recognize no peer in efficiency.

We make this statement again as a preface to a request.

Tuesday, November 5, is election day. None of the county officers has opposition for reelection. However, we urge and request all of the eligible voters of the county to go out next Tuesday and cast a vote of confidence and approval for the capable and efficient incumbents.

Their individual and collective records deserve a unanimous show of approbation at the polls.

NOTHING CAN STOP AMERICA

Injecting that optimistic note into the Forum of Current Problems, sponsored by the New York Herald Tribune, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr. president of the General Motors Corporation, declared that "America today is ready to go." Suiting deeds to words, he said, "It is this belief that leads General Motors to spend a sum in excess of $50,000,000 in preparation for the opportunities of tomorrow."

"The depression has now been substancially liquidated throughout the world," Mr. Sloan continued, "I am sure that we are about to liquidate much of the thinking and action related to it. I rest my case with all confidence in the belief that what the people of this country yest above everything else is an opportunity to work and to accomplish; to recoup their losses, the results of the tidal wave of deflation which engulfed us; to get back where they were.

"We like prosperity. We want something different only to insure ourselves against another depression. We want a rising standard of living. As returning prosperity becomes more widespread, we can definitely count upon a realignment of government economic policy, in the direction of accelerating father than retarding industrial progress. I believe this because, no other position will, or should be tolerated. That is why I repeat, 'Nothing can stop America.'"

DO YOU REMEMBER?

One of the cherished memories of the older generation must be that of the old rail fenced cellar.

Therin was the storehouse of the home, the protection against the privations of winter, a larder that always served up good wholesome food for the table.

There was a barrel of salt pork, endless crocks of pickle, as a rule stores of pickled pig's feet, jars of mincemeat, every variety of jams and preserves, a barrel of vinegar, sorghum, bins or barrels of potatoes and apples and shelves of canned goods. There were dried apples, dried butterbeans and navy beans. The family kept a winter's supply of sausage, hams, shoulders, lard, meal, flour, grits, sugar, salt, and coffee, My, my, what a delight the thoroughness with which the family stocked in supplies.

We moderns live one day at a time. The ease with which we can shop for the table from the modern store has wroght a change.

Were the store supplies cut off, we'd starve in a fortnight.
